03 Report a translation problem

Trojan Killer includes multiple interface languages. The exact list can change as translations are added or revised, so use the language selector in your installed copy as the current source.

01 Change the interface language

1. Open Trojan Killer.

2. Go to Settings and find Language.
3. Select the required language.
4. Restart the app if the whole interface does not refresh immediately.

The setting changes menus, buttons, messages, and other interface text. It does not change the scan engine, the Threat List, or the level of protection.

02 If your language is unavailable

Keep the interface in a language you understand well enough to review detections and cleanup actions safely. Do not guess when a warning or removal choice is unclear. Contact Support to ask whether another translation is planned.

03 Report a translation problem

Send the selected language, the exact screen, a screenshot, and the wording that appears wrong or does not fit. Do not include a full license key or private files in the screenshot. Support can confirm the intended meaning while the translation is reviewed.
